Great Design is Built Through Collaboration

This kitchen highlights the power of partnership between Homeward Custom Homes, Sims-Lohman, and Homecrest Cabinetry®, where truly thoughtful planning and flexible solutions came together to create a space designed to stand out.

Based in the Nashville area, Andrew Dyk and Jason Atkinson bring together builder vision and distributor expertise. With more than 25 years in homebuilding, Andrew leads Homeward Custom Homes with a strong focus on intentional kitchen and bath design. Jason Atkinson, a Production Sales professional with Sims-Lohman, brings over 28 years of experience supporting builders with ideal cabinetry solutions—partnering closely with Homeward Custom Homes for the past five years.

A Builder's Vision, Brought to Life

Founded in 2019, Homeward Custom Homes builds custom residences and thoughtfully designed infill homes throughout Nashville. For Andrew, kitchens and baths are more than functional spaces—they're visual anchors that define the home.

"From efficient use of space to creating kitchens that really pop, intentional design is a focus in every home we build," he shares. In this project, layered finishes, tailored cabinetry, and statement details bring that philosophy to life.

Custom Choice™ Unlocks Design Freedom

This kitchen's defining moment centered on the range wall and surrounding cabinetry.

"The biggest challenge was cabinetry around the range and hood," says Jason. Using Homecrest's Custom Choice program, the kitchen design team incorporated custom-sized cabinets, stacked uppers, and custom-height oven cabinets—creating a seamless, built-in look with architectural impact.

For Andrew, Custom Choice delivers the flexibility of fully custom cabinetry without slowing the build. "Built-in appliances and ceiling-height cabinets become effortless additions," he notes.

The Power of Partnership

From concept to completion, close collaboration shaped every step of the process.

After multiple layout and finish iterations, Jason's input on refinement and troubleshooting helped translate vision into reality. As a full-service, turnkey partner, Sims-Lohman supported design, delivery, installation, and punch—keeping the project on schedule without compromising design intent.

"The Custom Choice program gives us the flexibility of fully custom cabinetry with a turnaround time that meets our needs."

— Andrew Dyk, Homeward Custom Homes

DESIGN SPOTLIGHT

“When you’re supporting builders, reliable lead times matter just as much as good design—and Homecrest Cabinetry® delivers both.”

— Jason Atkinson, Sims-Lohman

Defining Success

In the end, design success is measured in the details—especially in cabinetry, one of the most scrutinized elements of any home. Every joint, finish, and line becomes part of the final impression. It’s a result that reflects the strength of true collaboration, thoughtful planning, and the value of choosing the right partners from the very start.

A special thanks to Andrew Dyk and Jason Atkinson for participating in Homecrest’s Design Spotlight.

Function Leads the Way

As kitchens continue to evolve into multi-functional, emotionally intelligent spaces, organization has moved from a “nice-to-have” to a design essential. Today’s consumers are prioritizing solutions that reduce visual clutter, support everyday routines, and adapt to changing lifestyles. The result is cabinetry that works harder behind the scenes—delivering both beauty and performance.

Flexibility Beyond the Kitchen

Cabinetry projects are increasingly extending into pantries, laundry rooms, mudrooms, bars, and home offices. Organization systems that work across multiple spaces allow homeowners to create a cohesive, functional experience throughout the whole-home.

Customization Is Key

Pantries, deep drawers, specialty storage, and appliance garages are the most frequently customized elements. Clients want storage tailored to how they cook, entertain, and live—whether that means spice drawers next to the drop-in range or unique storage solutions in pantries to accommodate baking accessories and host-centric households.
